

Ryan Broliar

Ryan Broliar is not your normal musician. His charisma, ability to connect with others, and inspiring nature has made him one of the most sought after musicians in San Diego. He will leave you and anyone else listening with a feeling of belonging, laughter, and many times... friendship.

Ryan started playing music at the age of 5 in Lake Tahoe, California, studying the "Suzuki Method" on the piano, where the theory of learning music is believed to be much like learning a native language. Characteristics of this method include a great deal of parental involvement, a supportive daily learning environment, and starting at a very early age. Ryan's ability to hear and replicate music soon blossomed as he showed interest and now plays the guitar, clarinet, saxophone, ukulele, harmonica, accordion, and African drums. This naturally grew into an enjoyment for entertaining others, as Ryan developed a keen sense of connecting to and being able to read his audience. His natural ability to make each person in the room feel like the most important person became more and more evident, creating a memorable and emotional connection with every one of his performances.

Nicole Arend, Event Coordinator at Westfield Mall UTC, said, "His gregarious personality and ability to gage the vibe of the room and engage the crowd makes him an astute and versatile performer. He easily integrates the crowd happenings."

Ryan plays many styles of music under the Americana genre, and has put his own touch on the music he performs.

Brianna McKibben, Marketing Manager with San Diego Dining Group, shared, “Ryan is an amazingly gifted, talented, multi-faceted musician. His genre ranges from pop, classic rock, jazz, country, big band swing, and just about everything in between.”

Ryan presently gives back to the Community of San Diego, using his talents to bring joy to convalescent patients at Brighton Place, Vi La Jolla, and Bella Vista Assisted Senior Living facilities. He is also a Community Project Manager for Art and Music Service Learning events with the San Diego Padres and San Diego Coalition for the Homeless, where he worked with his students of O'Farrell Community School to give back to the community of San Diego.
